ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Responsible and effective environmental management could never be more important than it is today. Tackling climate change means that everyone has to take responsibility for their environmental impacts. While maintaining complete compliance with the principles underlying both the development of the company mission and the framing of the environmental policies, Emergency Relief Supplies Ltd has been able to achieve a series of improvements, largely as a result of a proven ability to apply increasingly responsible, ethical approaches to the management of its processes. We actively strive to be a good steward for the environment by adhering to sound environmental principles and business practices. Purchasing decisions can have a profound effect on the environment. Manufactured products use valuable resources and pollute our land, air and water. Goods consume energy and water during their manufacture and may consume further energy and water when in use. The goods themselves, their by-products and their packaging eventually have to be disposed of as waste.

It is the objective of Emergency Relief Supplies Ltd. to:

- Source and supply products that meet environmental guidelines.
- Conduct business operations in compliance with all applicable environmental regulations
- Instill in all ERS personnel and suppliers of our goods, environmental protection awareness.
- Ensure that an organized and systematic approach is used to identify environmentally hazardous substances and eliminate their use.
- Ensure that an organized approach is used to identify concerns and that adequate support and resources are provided to implement prompt corrective action.
- Review and evaluate all products for their material content and its compliance to required environmental objectives

We continuously examine our activities on the basis of environmental policy and relevant legislation. Every employee is responsible for his / her part in the practical implementation of our environmental work. Training and tools are provided in order to support environmental endeavors. Our Policy helps us to fulfill our environmental responsibilities which in turn help to influence our clients, so that we can justifiably claim that we are `` greening our supply chain''. We encourage our customers to respect the environment and to avoid activities which exploit it.
